DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 10, 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,392,258 Hirata et al.

1. Referring to claim 10, a semiconductor component comprising: a semiconductor substrate, (Figure 1 #1), having an emitter layer, (Figure 1 #5), a base layer, (Figure 1 #4), and a collector layer, (Figure 1 #3); a dielectric layer, (Figure 1 #14), formed over a passivation ledge, (Figure 1 examiner's label #100), in the emitter layer, (Figure 1 #5); and a base contact, (Figure 1 #9), disposed on the dielectric layer, (Figure 1 #14).
2. Referring to claim 12, a semiconductor component, wherein a region of the base layer, (Figure 1 #4), and a region of the collector layer, (Figure 1 #3), form boundaries that are substantially aligned to a first edge, (Figure 1 examiner's label #200), of the base contact, (Figure 1 #9), that is remote from the emitter layer, (Figure 1 #5).
3. Referring to claim 13, a semiconductor component, wherein the base layer, (Figure 1 #4), is comprised of a p type material, (Col. 2 Lines 20-21).
4. Referring to claim 14, a heterojunction bipolar transistor comprising: a substrate layer, (Figure 1 #1), a subcollector layer, (Figure 1 #2), a collector layer, (Figure 1 #3), a base layer,

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,392,258 Hirata et al.

5. Referring to claim 11, a semiconductor component, wherein the dielectric layer, (Figure 1 #14), is comprised of a material selected from the group consisting of silicon nitride, aluminum nitride, silicon dioxide, silicon oxynitride, and mixtures thereof.

Hirata et al. discloses the claimed invention except for the dielectric layer comprising the materials as claimed in claim 11. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the dielectric layer out of the materials as claimed in claim 11 instead of a polyimide resin as taught by Hirata et al., since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
